Cr
Creating What We Don't Want - From Daily Om.com

When our thoughts become consumed with worry, we become a beacon of worry to the world.

If prayer is an intention that we announce to the universe in order to create a desired outcome, then our every thought is a prayer. This includes thoughts of worry as well as of hope. All thoughts are subtle creative energy. Some thoughts are more focused or repeated more often, gathering strength. Some are written down or spoken, giving them even greater power. Every thought we have is part of a process whereby we co-create our experience and our reality with the universe. When we use our creative energy unconsciously, we create what is commonly known as self-fulfilling prophecy. In essence, when we worry, we are repeatedly praying and lending our energy to the creation of something we don't want.

The good news is that we can re-train our minds and thoughts to focus our energy on what we do desire to bring into our lives. Since most worry is repetitive, it will take more than one positive thought to counteract the energy we've created. The simplest antidote to worry is affirmations. When we hold these positive thoughts, repeat them often, speak them and write them and refer to them throughout our day, we are using focused energy to create positive results.

We can start right away, together: I am a creative being, using my energy to cocreate a wonderful world. I know that I create my experience of life from within, and as I do so, I also create ripples of energy around me that echo into the world. My positive thoughts gather together with the thoughts and prayers of others, and together we create enough positive energy to heal not only our own lives but the world we share. I am grateful for the ability to cocreate good in my life and in the world.

A lot of times we have concerned loved ones that worry about us. When this happens they are also sending out a worry prayer to the world. A loving conversation letting them know what is happening is the easiest solution. Also, ask them to send you positive affirmations rather than worry about you. After all, worry doesn't do them any good either. Explain to them that worry can actually be energetically harmful to you and that wishing good things for you is much more beneficial and much more fun too.

Get Your Cosmic Mojo On Crypto Investing: Astrological Signs and Symbols

Miami: A Crypto-Epicenter

On April 7 and 8 I attended the Bitcoin 2022 Conference in Miami. It was huge and quite frankly overwhelming. This was somewhat similar to the Miami Bull (see above) that was unveiled at the conference. Statistics said there were 25,000 attendees. This represented a large growth from the 2021 Bitcoin Miami Conference which was reputed to have 10,000 attendees. Obviously, this is a growing industry. To be informed citizen of the world, and our neighboring Miami, it is an industry worthy of attention.

I am a fan of cryptocurrency. Having first invested in crypto back in 2018, I have seen a very significant profit from my investment. Even though crypto is quite volatile and currently in a bearish phase I am still completely convinced having invested in crypto that my retirement future is secure. I believe it is here to stay and as more and more people come into the crypto space the value of my investments will rise significantly.

Following a Crypto Related Intuitive Insight

In a flash of inspiration one day a little over a year ago I got the message that I was to be writing a column called Cryptoscopes. Upon getting this message I invested a significant sum in purchasing the domain name, cryptoscopes.com. I have not yet begun to activate it. In this week's column I will begin to step into making this idea come to life by writing short snippets about how the symbols of each astrological sign relate to crypto investing. In addition to gaining insight into your sign, you may find this column will help advance your crypto-literacy. I draw liberally from the crypto-glossary of terms and current trends in the industry. Thus, if you are interested in staying attuned to current trends and events, I encourage you to read not only your own sign but also every other sign.

Astro Symbols, Astrological Sun Signs, and Cryptocurrencies

Aries: Cryptocurrencies have only been around for about 20 years. They are a very young investment asset. It would be interesting to know what percentage of the early investors are Aries. Aries the first sign of the zodiac enjoy the symbol of the Ram. They like pushing their way into being first. They are likely to be among the numerically most invested sign as they are natural born early-adopters.

Taurus: The symbol for Taurus is the bull. Once a Taurus gets over his or her fixed sign tendency to not like change and actually buy in, they are likely to be extremely bullish on crypto – even when it takes its ever to be expected dips in price. Miami is very bullish on getting crypto companies to come to Miami. The mayor of Miami unveiled the crypto bull at the Bitcoin Conference. It is a rather fierce looking beast.

Gemini: The symbol for Gemini is The Twins as it is the Latin word for Twins. Here's a bit of trivia: The crypto exchange named Gemini was started and is owned by the Winklevoss Twins.

Cancer: The symbol for Cancer is the Crab representing that Cancers are very protective of their soft underbelly. Crypto investments are best stored off line in what are known as hardware wallets. Thus, one's investment cannot be hacked. These wallets can be thought of as modern day Cancerian apparatuses.

Leo: The symbol for Leos is the Lion relating to Leo's tendencies for wanting to be the center of attention as the kingpin of any and all situations. Bitcoin is the king of cryptos and could come to be a substitute symbol for how Leo's function in the crypto world.

Virgos: The symbol of Virgo is a maiden carrying wheat, a representation of a Virgo's ability to pay attention to separating the wheat from the chaff. Because it is easy and potentially very profitable to be creating a cryptocurrency there are thousands of companies speculating on inventing new coins. If you want to speculate on finding a rising crypto star much Virgoan research and time to separate the wheat from the chaff is recommended. (continued)

Libra: The symbol for Libras is the scales representing Libra's desire for balance. Many champions of cryptocurrency like it because it makes it possible for the average person to get a footing in the financial world. Thus, for example: A single bitcoin is currently worth about $40,000 and however anyone can begin investing it with as little as $10.00. Then for this investor, as a consequence of investing, he or she equally benefits from the appreciation of the asset.

Scorpio: The Scorpion, with its poisonous tail it uses to strike when it is threatened, is the symbol for Scorpio. The symbol suggests that people do not want to mess with scorpions. However, not as well known is that there is another symbol also used for Scorpios. This additional symbol is the eagle. Crypto investors are encouraged to store assets in hard wallets so they need not worry about internet hackers. Then, there is no need for defensive self-protection and the investor can fly like an eagle, the bird that is the symbol for the evolved Scorpio.

Sagittarius: An Archer is the symbol for the sun sign Sagittarius. An Archer can shoot arrows in many different directions. Prudent investing in crypto for most investors involves having some funds invested in the core "store of value" coins (Bitcoin and Ethereum) and then some smaller amounts of speculative funds sent off with the hope of hitting a jackpot target of a coin that will realize a 10, 20, 50 or even 100xs gain.

Capricorn: The symbol for Capricorn is the Seagoat, a creature who can successfully navigate the very different terrains of earth and water. Cryptocurrency is volatile and there are peaks and valleys. The astrological investing advice I follow is assuring that Bitcoin, despite short term shifts and changes, is highly likely to grow consistently for the long term. Then, in the meantime there are times when I want to call upon the kind of determination displayed by Capricorns who are skillful at navigating changing terrains.

Aquarius: The symbol for Aquarius is the Water Bearer. In ancient times (when astrology was first being originated) it was revolutionary when women, who were responsible for delivering water to the village, discovered they could put water in a vessel and carry enough to serve many. Crypto is a quintessential Aquarian asset. It brings a revolution to currency that will support and serve many.

Pisces: The symbol for Pisces is two fishes showing the division between fantasy and reality. Because crypto is new there is much tendency for people to fear it. Crypto experts are well aware there is much F.U.D. (Fear Uncertainty and Doubt) surrounding it. People have a penchant for making up crazy reasons to try to frighten people away from making progress. Such has been the case for almost every revolutionary invention throughout history. With education (of which there is plenty available on YouTube) you can learn how much of the FUD can be debunked. With a bit of effort you can get a perspective on separating fearful fantasy from reality.
