WEEKLY TIPS FOR YOUR WELL BEING

MAGICAL THINGS

Keeping a collection of magical items is a great way to reflect and be inspired.

Some inspire us to reflect while some have the power to positively influence moods. Others take us back in time, capturing in their essence memories locked in history or helping us reaffirm our connection with the universe. Magical objects can be found almost anywhere and can be practically anything, from gifts of nature (my favorite! ) to man made artifacts. You'll know an object is truly magical when it touches you deeply, awakening some primal part of yourself that is more profoundly connected to the ethereal.

Though the universe as a whole is imbued with an undeniable aura of magic, we can further fill our lives with magic by creating a collection of magical things. More than being simply beautiful, such objects can potentially play an active role in the shaping of our experience as each magical object serves a unique and multifaceted purpose.

For me, I love seashells, beach pebbles, river rocks and driftwood! If you feel you don't have anything magical in your life, ask the universe for help, and it will be long before a meaningful artifact, a simple feather, a special stone, or another powerful item reveals itself to you and fills your life with enchantment.

GET YOUR COSMIC CRYPTO MOJO ON ABOUT THE MOON & MONEY

Zodiac News and Views

Today Friday 7/9/21 there is a New Moon in Cancer. New Moons favor new beginnings. Most likely the pesky disruptive pandemic has influenced and/or forced you to make decisions that have, at least relate to some element of new beginnings.

On a personal note the word "forced" applies and is painfully operative. Both the person who has filed my taxes for the past thirty years and my web designer of the past 10 years died during the month of June New beginnings and directions are certainly what's up for me!

The uplifting factor about this particular New Moon is, that Cancer, a water sign, supports us in being intuitive. Thus this next week will be an excellent time to gain a deeper and higher powered visionary perspective on how you want to move into a future that supports your well-being: body, mind and spirit.

Cryptocurrency and Our Changing World

A significant metaphysical Influence on our lifestyle can be tracked by paying attention to the changing state of money and the storage of value. It is migrating to a new system. Whether or not you understand or are engaged in cryptocurrency it is relevant for you to be aware that it is here to stay. I can say this with confidence as an astrologer. We have moved into the Age of Aquarius that is ruled by Uranus, the planet of innovation. Cryptocurrency is clearly innovative.

There are many people who, being like most people who do not like change, would like to dismiss crypto as a fad. Such a response, in my estimation, is as silly as the folks who said, "If God wanted us to fly He would have given us wings." FYI: Jill supports this column in her newsletter because she takes her role of supporting her clients in being financially literate and thus prepared to make good decisions seriously.

On a lighter note in the realm of Crypto Trivia this week, as mentioned above, the focus is on the New Moon being in Cancer. This is a sign typically equated with a person being nurturing. Elon Musk is a Cancer. Research reveals he as a committed dad drives his 6 children to school daily. That fits with nurturing but beyond that Elon certainly is not one to be considered the poster child of nurturing. Elon, who has inserted himself as a vocal and disruptive personality in the crypto world seems to fit well with this other Cancans such as Alexander the Great, Henry VIII and Julius Caesar.
